WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION: Participants of this workshop will learn age appropriate conversations to have with children to promote a healthy discover of sexuality. They will learn signs of sexual abuse, as well as how to be an ally to victims. You will walk away with the tools and confidence to have “the big talk” and create an open line of communication and trust for children at all stages of life.

PRESENTER: KRISTLE STRELOW
 Krystle Strelow is going into her seventh year of education. She started at the Elementary level and is now teaching Middle School math at USD261. She is also a part of a company outside of education which supports a foundation and retreat that advocates for victims of sexual abuse and the prevention of sexual abuse in children under 18. She speaks passionately for this cause and hopes to educate as many as possible and normalize the conversations around healthy sexuality.
